Berlin, Jan. 22.-Chancellor von Bueagain spoke on Venezuela in the chstag today in answer to the critiisms of Herr Bebel (Socialist) on the remment's policy. The chancellor "Herr Bebel has defended the ingular behavior of the Venezuelan remment again, with a degree of anation such as I have seen in no Euro. m newspaper, President Castro ubtless will read Herr Bebel's speech ith the greatest delight at his morning coffee. NOTABLE series of international ice races is to be held on Gull lake, near Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan.

And as for Lieut, Stott, it is said that ta became chief of scouts in the United he has constantly discovered new reasons for falling in love with Miss Cody On many a long and hard march has Col, W. F. Cody led that regiment. In ever since he met her, so it really doesn't make much difference when and where that was. There is a re-markable unanimity of opinion that Miss Cody always looks best in the Of more than average height, she as a stunning figure, and she carries erself with the ease and grace that ne would expect of a daughter of Buffale Bill. She has a wonderful and dazzling complexion, but, sad to relate, the daughter of the man who was noted for the keeness of his vision is compelled to wear eye glasses. She has inherited from him, however, that won-derful charm of manner, that magnetism and capacity for attracting people that has made him one of the most popular men in the world. Born on her father's ranch at North Platte, Miss Cody was graduated from a seminar in Denver, and then was sent to the finishing school of Miss Brown, in Fifth avenue, New York. She has accom-panied her father on his wide travels, and she has among her personal friends ever so many persons of distinction and rank. Altogether she is a most brilliantly educated young woman. It is rather curious that she has a distaste for firearms. But she does love horses, and she can ride anything except a bucking broncho. She looks her best in the saddle.

It was fitting that Col. Cody should himself announce the engagement at the first big celebration of the fine new hotel which he built at Cody, Wyo, which he hopes to make a famous resort for those seeking health and sport. This hotel he named the Irma, in honor of his daughter. It was opened on Nov. 18 last with a big dinner, followed by a ball, People came hundreds of by a ball. People came hundreds of miles for the affair. In his clever, graceful way, Col. Cody announced the engagement of his daughter to Lieut. Stott at the close of the dinner and asked everyone to drink to their health. Then Lieut. Stott and Miss Cody opened the ball. The engagement was celebrated with even more enthusiasm than the opening of the hotel.

It was planned to have the wedding take place this month, and Miss Cody came to New York to prepare for it, and Lieut. Stott secured leave and followed. But the death of Nate Salis-bury changed all the plans. The show is now in England, making its farewell tour of Europe, and Col. Cody was compelled to join it at __ce, which necessitated a postponement of the marriage. But the colonel promised that he would return at the earliest day possible to see his daughter married, and the date of the wedding will b fixed when he cables his sailing date The ceremony will take place in the Irma hotel in Cody, and it will be a really great event. Col. Cody will bring with him from Europe many of his titled and distinguished friends. Scores of his countrymen will journey more than half way across the continent to be present. Cowboys, frontiersmen, scouts, Indians and those who made the west fine and picturesque will be bid-den to the wedding, and the feasting and sports will last for a week.
